Moving doesn't have to be stressful!

Did you know that making even a small mistake during your move can cost you a lot of money and stress? In this free guide you'll discover the 7 most common — and costly — mistakes people make when moving, and exactly how to avoid them so your move is fast, safe and hassle-free.

Mistake #1: Not hiring qualified professionals

One of the biggest mistakes you can make is underestimating the importance of hiring a professional, reliable moving company. A professional team has the experience, proper equipment and skill to handle any move — big or small — without risking the safety of your belongings.

The risk of doing it wrong is expensive: if your items are damaged, replacing them costs far more than hiring professionals from the start.

Pro tip: Check reviews and ask for proof of insurance. A reputable company will happily answer your questions and share testimonials from happy customers.

Mistake #2: Not planning ahead

Planning is everything when it comes to moving. Leave it to the last minute and you'll likely lose track of important items or make expensive mistakes on the day.

Start planning at least 2 weeks out. Make an inventory, pack early, and confirm all the details with your movers in advance for a smooth, stress-free transition.

Pro tip: Schedule your move during non-peak hours and confirm everything beforehand. Punctuality is one of the clearest signs of a reliable moving company.

Mistake #3: Not considering insurance

Most people don't think about insurance until something goes wrong. But what if your most valuable furniture is damaged, or something gets lost along the way?

This is the one that catches people out — and it's why it can truly shock you.

Pro tip: Make sure your moving company offers proper transit insurance. It's the difference between losing everything with no compensation and having complete peace of mind if anything goes wrong.

Mistake #4: Not checking the destination property

It's crucial to make sure your new place is ready to receive your belongings. People often forget to check access points, space for large furniture, or where outlets and water/gas connections are.

Pro tip: Do a quick walk-through of your new home before moving day so the movers know exactly where everything goes — saving you a ton of stress.

Pro tip 2: At both pick-up and drop-off, get the truck parked as close to the main entrance as possible.

Mistake #5: Not protecting your belongings properly

A lot of people think putting things in boxes is enough. The truth is — it's not! Poorly packed boxes, unwrapped furniture or cheap materials lead to serious damage in transit.

Pack properly, ideally in purpose-made moving boxes, and use quality materials like bubble wrap and blankets for furniture and fragile items.

Pro tip: Ask your moving company whether they wrap your items and with what materials — a good crew will always help you with this.

Mistake #6: Lack of clear communication with your movers

Communication is key to a successful move. If your movers don't fully understand your needs, things end up in the wrong place or the service falls short. Be clear and specific about what you expect and how the process will work.

Good communication = a smooth, efficient move.

Pro tip: Empty out furniture and white goods (fridges, washers) before the move so they're safe and easy to carry.

Mistake #7: Not having a Plan B

Moves don't always go to plan — traffic, bad weather or unexpected issues can cause delays. Build extra time and flexibility into your schedule so you can handle any surprises without stress.

Pro tip: Always have a Plan B. A little buffer in your timeline turns a stressful day into an easy one.

The bottom line

Moving doesn't have to be a nightmare. With the right planning — and by avoiding these 7 mistakes — your move can be simple, smooth and completely stress-free. You'll save time, money and frustration, and get to enjoy your new home with total peace of mind.
